

No flight due to persistent low-lying fog. Satellite photos indicate these conditions are present throughout the study area, unchanged since yesterday when we were able to verify that the fog is too thick to survey.

There will be no flight tomorrow. Our pilot has a previously scheduled flying commitment elsewhere. He will return to Barrow tomorrow evening for a possible next survey flight on 6 July, weather permitting.